NOTES FROM THE CHAIR

Last week I attended the funeral of William Wybar (known to most people as Willie). Willie was a former chairman of the Scottish Goatkeepers Federation and BGS Scottish representative. The church at Buchlyvie, Stirlingshire was full to hear 2 lady ministers deliver an excellent service in praise of Willie's life. Condolences are sent to Willie's family. An obituary appears elsewhere in this journal.

Shane Jones has now received sufficient 2014 calendar sponsorship so on Shane's behalf I would like to thank everyone who bought a month. It is hoped to have the calendars available to buy at the Dundee Conference next month. Jane will also have the BGS sales table there with our range of merchandise.

At the most recent committee meeting, consideration was given to quotes received for the upgrade of our web site. It was agreed that further information was needed on these quotes before a decision could be reached on which one to accept. Graham Godfrey has this in hand. It is important not to rush into accepting a quote which on the face of it may seem fine, but ultimately does not provide us with what we want or need. Every aspect of the web site, including the on-line shop, must work efficiently whilst being user friendly. A decision was taken to buy the domain names www.britishgoatsociety.co.uk and www.britishgoatsociety.com.

The BGS has had representation for several years at the annual Livestock Event held at the NEC, Birmingham, however a decision has been taken not to attend next year due to lesser interest in our stand this year than previous years.

The last few days have seen a return to high summer temperatures in my neck of the woods, although evenings have a distinct nip in the air. A few of my kids have been in season so thoughts are clearly turning to mating can it really be that time of year already?

SECRETARY'S NOTES

Dear Members,

It is getting to that time of year when you start arranging stud goats. Could you please let the office know if a male is going on loan so that a note can be held on file. It saves time in the long run when registrations come in.

Electronic service certificates can be produced and printed online using Grassroots in the same way as registrations and transfers are logged. The service certificates can be printed off and handed to the owner of the doe. Electronic service certificates are downloaded and a note logged on the file of both goats. Owners of male goats at stud will now receive an email saying that a registration of a kid by their sire has been applied for online and to contact the office if this is not correct.

Please note transfers need to be signed by the vendor not the purchaser. A new form is available to download from the website which makes this clearer.

Fees for 2014 will appear in the next Monthly Journal. The top photo on page 178 in August Monthly Journal was of Cath Luty not as stated.

On 27th October, four breed societies will be holding their AGM's as usual in Warwickshire. The Anglo Nubian and British Toggenburg at Losonford Village Hall; the Toggenburg and British Alpine at Rowington Village Hall. The halls are booked from 10 30am. Contact your breed society secretary for further details.

Best Wishes
 Jane

WILLIAM WYBAR

It is with great sadness that I have to inform you that William Wybar passed away peacefully in the night on the 20th August 2013.

Willie took on his mother's herd of milking goats in the early seventies, and joined the Scottish Goatkeepers Federation (SGF) in 1976. He registered his prefix, Endricvale in 1978, and registered goats to the prefix the same year. He was also elected onto the SGF Committee that year and became Treasurer until 1984.

Willie kept mostly BS types, but had stopped breeding goats by the late eighties. However, his commitment to the goat keeping world didn't stop then, whilst still Treasurer, he was elected Chairman of the SGF in 1981, a post he held until 1984. From 1993 until 1999, he was the BGS delegate for Scotland. Within the SGF, he was chairman once again from 1995 to 2003.

Willie thoroughly enjoyed the social side of attending shows, and went to many shows, including The Royal Highland every year. Several times a year he would steward goat shows, including the annual SGF show. Willie was known for his joke telling, and certainly had the biggest repertoire of jokes of anyone I have ever met.

Whilst Willie was very much involved with goats, I think everyone would agree with me when I say that his true love was in fact Shetland ponies. He joined the Shetland Pony Society in 1973 and bought his first pony that same year, which started his Endrick stud. He bred and registered over 200 shetland ponies to his Endrick stud over 40 years. He was a founding member of the Central Scotland Shetland Pony Group, was on their committee as Treasurer, and was eventually granted honorary life membership status.

Willie's career was with the Bank of Scotland, but he will be most remembered for his contribution to the local farming community. Not only did he have goats and Shetland ponies, but an interest in dogs, poultry, jersey cows, highland cattle and even the occasional highland pony.

In latter years, Willie had suffered some ill health, but he didn't let it get him down, and he managed to attend the SGF's 90th anniversary AGM in 2011.

Our condolences go to Willie's family, and all who knew him.

FARM AFRICA & OTHER CHARITIES

Farm Africa is a UK-based charitable organization set up in 1985 that works with farmers and forest communities in eastern Africa. The charity provides training to help these groups grow more food, look after their livestock and make a living using their natural resources sustainably. Farm Africa has offices in the United Kingdom, Kenya, Tanzania and Ethiopia and works in the east African countries of Ethiopia, Kenya, South Sudan, Tanzania and Uganda with small-scale farmers in very different habitats <http://www.farmafrica.org>

Swiss Trip

"After delivering AN male kids Hurstpier Mostaza, Ivans Torres & Colemans Clansman to Theresia Marbach-Jund at Mauensee my husband Keith & I made our way to Dallenwil in the Nidwalden canton to meet the Odermatt family. Hermann Odermatt is an Overseas BGS Member. I had corresponded with him previously but we'd never met. So this was an ideal opportunity. Their farm was in a beautiful location in a valley with Lake Lucerne to the north and Engelberg to the south looking up to Mt. Titlis.

Hermann gave us a guided tour of the cheese factory. It was absolutely amazing to see so many different varieties, many of them prize winners. They use both cow's milk & goat's milk. Afterwards we were invited to lunch where we tasted a few of the special cheeses selected by Hermann. What a delight. We chatted about British goats. Hermann has visited the UK several times and knows quite a few herds. He showed me a photo of the Saanen male Tambo Visp who I once showed for Virginia Crane at Glos M & YS show getting BIS. Herman was probably the first Swiss goatkeeper to introduce the Anglo-Nubian. He has been the guiding light for others who now find this breed so useful for increasing butterfats & proteins for their cheese making. It was such a treat to meet Hermann & his wife Dora. Also their son Patrick. A real family business.

Swiss Trip

Individual Speciality Cheeses From Switzerland*.*

In the same way that many streams flow down into the valleys and many cable cars scale the mountains, so we want to pamper cheese lovers everywhere with our many speciality cheeses. In our family business in Dallenwil (in the Canton of Nidwalden) we produce our distinctive speciality cheeses. Every day we are inspired by our dynamic and geologically fascinating surroundings to deliver our very best.

From the high mountains (the Buochserhorn at 1,850 metres above sea level) to the valleys below, the local farmers supply us with goat's and cow's milk of the very best quality. Following the cheese traditions of Central Switzerland, which have been in place for centuries, we work closely with our responsible farming partners to ensure steady progress.

Familie Odermatt

We retraced our steps back to Stans and continued along the motorway to Altdorf. A picturesque town with a superb statue of William Tell. From there we headed off up into the mountains and the Klaussen Pass. One we had never been over before. A popular route for cyclists & motor bikers. 1948 metres at the summit. Due to the nearby motorway the pass is mostly used by locals and enthusiasts. And is the home of the legendary "Klaussen Run" a 21.5 km pre-war hill climb. It still hosts a vintage car event every 4 or 5 years. The views were superb but we were glad we managed to tackle it in daylight. Light was fading as we reached our destination. This was Schwanden near Glarus. Home to Martin & Trix Lehmann & their herd of Chamoisées (or Chamois). Beautiful rich bay goats with black points. The polled ones are known as Brienzer-Oberhasli & the horned ones as Gemsfarbige Gebirgsziegen (if you can say it!)

The Americans love these goats but call them all Oberhasli.

We stayed there for two glorious days exploring the mountains and soaking up the atmosphere. We watched Martin milking at dawn then walking his herd to fresh pasture (barefoot by the way!) He also does a lot of mountain walking & has sheep on the high pastures. And he is an accomplished musician (guitar, banjo & mouth organ). Again I had corresponded with him for a long time but never met him. So a great delight to finally pay him & Trix a visit and see their lovely goats. And sample the wonderful goat cheese that Trix makes & sells locally.

From there it was a long run home on busy autobahns. We always hate leaving the mountains behind but hopefully we'll return again in due course. And we wish the best of luck to the lovely British AN boys we delivered on this trip.

Christine Ball.

THE RAGWORT CONTROL ACT

The Ragwort control Act 2003 came into force on 20th February 2004. Members no doubt realize that ragwort is poisonous, potentially causing fatal liver damage, if eaten, and is particularly dangerous if it is cut and dried, as in haymaking.

It was previously, and still is controlled by the Weeds Act 1959, together with four other weeds. It is not illegal to have it growing on your land, but it is an offence to allow the seeds to spread.

It is often the case that ragwort (or other injurious weeds) grow unchecked in surrounding areas, making our attempts to eradicate them somewhat futile. There are ways of dealing with this situation. If the offending area is Privately Owned, the first step is to ask the owner to clear the ragwort. If the ragwort is growing alongside motorways, contact Highways Agency on 08457-504030, alongside railway land and embankments contact Network Rail on 08457-114141. If it is growing alongside minor roads, contact the local Highways Authority.

If this fails, obtain and complete a Weeds Act complaint form (Weed 2 Rev7/03) from the rural development Service Office and return it to them Tel 0117 9598622.

RAGWORT – THE FACTS

- Senecio jacobaea (Common Ragwort) is a yellow-flowered weed which grows on almost any soil. It is most often seen on motorways and bypass embankments and poorly managed pastures. It has spread to affect most counties of England, Wales and Scotland
- Is highly toxic to horses, cattle and sheep, causing progressive and irreversible liver damage. As little as 2lbs fresh weight can cause fatal damage when eaten. By the time the symptoms show, there is no remedy and the animal dies or must be humanely destroyed.
- Symptoms may include weight loss; poor or staring coat; staggering gait; impaired vision followed by circling, blindness, colliding with obstacles, lachrymation, severe abdominal pain, inability to swallow and, finally collapse and death.
- Chronic intoxication is indicated by the loss of the long hair from the mane and tail of horses or the switch of cattle, dullness and lack of vitality, emaciation coupled with a depraved appetite and abnormalities or sloughing of the hooves.
- It is an injurious weed under the 1959 weeds Act. DEFRA and local authorities have the powers to serve clearance notices. Some local authorities have bylaws to control ragwort.
- It is prolific. It propagates by blown seed. A single plant may produce 150,000 seeds with 70% germination rate.
- It is normally a biennial – Rosette in the 1st year, flowering in the 2nd year.
- Is hard to eradicate. Seed can last 20 years in the soil before germinating, and any root left behind when it is dug up, will re-grow.

It is relatively unattractive to most grazing animals in its green state. But when cut and wilted in hay or topped pastures, it becomes highly palatable and may be inadvertently eaten in large amounts in hay and conserved forage. It remains very toxic when cut and dried.

INITIAL TRAINING DAY FOR PYGMY GOAT JUDGES

I have kept Pygmy goats for approx. 15 years and occasionally taken them to shows over that time. Judges for my Pygmy goats have never, to the best of my knowledge, been recognised by the Pygmy Goat Club (PGC), but instead are usually dairy goat judges (sometimes licensed by the BGS, sometimes not) who are willing to 'take on' judging the Pygmies because they are at a show anyway.

I was interested to learn through PGC Notes (equivalent of BGS journal) that an initial training day was to be held this year for people interested in possibly becoming a recognised judge, so I asked Peter Mercer, Newcastle Emlyn, the chair of the PGC Judges' Panel if I could be considered for a place on the course. I was pleased when my request was successful – so I then had to plan my journey to Higher Wheelton, Chorley, Lancashire on Sunday 28 April. It was the day following a BGS committee meeting in London, so this entailed flying to/back home from London then up at silly o'clock on the Sunday morning to drive to Chorley for a 10.30 am start. Unfortunately I got a little bit lost as I neared the venue, but managed to make it there by about 10.50 am which was disappointing but considering I had driven approx. 5 hours to get there, to be less than half an hour late I thought wasn't the end of the world.

I had been supplied with a ten point programme outline prior to the day, so had a fairly good idea what to expect. By the time I arrived, Pat (Peter's wife) was well into the section about Pygmy goat anatomy, using several live models to illustrate various points. The Breed Standard was gone into in detail with items covered ranging from size – wither height males (at maturity, 30 months) minimum 17" / maximum 22" and females (at maturity 24 months) minimum 17" / maximum 21" – to the length of cannon, minimum 3.5" / maximum 4.5". The animal was broken down into its various anatomy points, e.g. head, neck, shoulders, heart girth, body capacity, back, rump, legs, coat and colour then each component was discussed.

Goats were brought forward for the trainees (myself + 4 others) to assess – one of the exercises entailed judging a class of 5 goats and marking how we placed them on a flip chart. Trainees were then encouraged to discuss our placings and given guidance and feedback from Peter and Pat. We were given milkers, goatlings, kids and males to place. I found it very interesting to hear other people's views and although I didn't always agree with them, I had no hesitation in explaining my evaluation of each goat. The use of 'key words' was an important part of the course – these words to be used in the feedback to exhibitors at shows. It is not acceptable to merely say an animal is 'not as good as the one above' - reasons for placings need to be provided. Before a judge can do this, they must have an in-depth knowledge of the breed standard and be aware that for Pygmy goats the animal should give the appearance of being hardy, genetically small, cobby and compact with a head, neck and legs in proportion to the body. The body should be full barrelled with well sprung ribs, well muscled with the circumference in relation to height/weight proportionally greater than other breeds. They need to stand 'square' with a wide chest and wide rear stance as the animal stands naturally.

There are several faults which disqualify Pygmy goats from being registered in the Herd Book and also from entering breed classes at shows: an over/under shot jaw, any teat defect in either the female or male, if a goat is polled (all Pygmies are born horned), no Swiss type markings, Roman nose, pendulous ears, non-conformity to size, any evidence of supernumerary teats being removed or in the case of males, testicles being uneven in size, not properly descended or less than two.

A Pet Record category exists for Pygmies and animals registered in this section cannot be upgraded to Herd Book. It is acceptable for Pet Record animals to have mouth/teat/size faults and they can be the product of non registered parents. Separate Pet Record classes are run at shows for these goats and when judging they are judged to 3 criteria, i.e. conformation, condition and temperament/behaviour. I have to say that some of the Pygmy exhibitors I have seen at shows (in fact some dairy goat exhibitors too) are rather neglectful when it comes to learning their goats how to walk out or stand square – it's difficult for a judge to evaluate an animal if it doesn't show itself properly. Basic homework should to be done prior to going to a show to tick the 'behaviour' box.

An important part of judging Pygmy goats (as is the case with dairy goats) is the writing up of the judge's report following a show. Several show reports were provided for us trainees to assess and it quickly became clear the standard required, also the difference between well constructed and poorly constructed reports.

The day ended with a discussion/summing up session round the table, when everyone chipped in their view/thoughts. I thought it was a very well structured day and so good to have live animals to work with – it was particularly interesting for me to compare these animals with my own.

I have been advised that the knowledge, handling skills and oral feedback I demonstrated at the training day are of a standard which would allow me to move on to the next stage of the process which could lead to me being approved as a recognised Pygmy goat judge. There are no recognised Pygmy goat judges north of Lincoln and the PGC is anxious to recruit more judges from the north – I guess I qualify on that score!

BGS Committee Meeting

Resume of the committee meeting held 31st July 2013

As BGS is no longer registered for VAT a reduction has been agreed to various charges to members.

It was agreed to produce a calendar for 2014 but Shane is still short of contributions.

There was discussion of exhibitors from Northern Ireland attending shows on the mainland. Northern Ireland is a CAE free country but, despite this, whole herd CAE certificates are required to enter shows on the mainland in order to satisfy BGS rules.

The milk recording conference postponed due to bad weather will now take place in the autumn.

BGS have a supply of smart binders for the Journal. These can be ordered from the office for £4.00 plus packing and postage.

It is hoped to be able to provide some financial support for the Breed Shows. This will be considered at the November committee meeting.
