With only four milkers in inspection, and small numbers of both youngstock and males, this was a disappointing show in many respects. The IGPA has been working hard to encourage exhibitors and must be commended on keeping the show alive. Every show has its good and not so good years, and the latter can often be due to ill health of one or more potential exhibitors. This show, as always, was organised and run efficiently, and there is no doubt that organisers and exhibitors alike enjoyed the whole experience. So let's build on what we have and plan for better entries in years to come.
